Vespers

At “Lord, I call...,” 6 stichera

3 stichera of St. Theodora, in Tone 4: To the melody, “As one valiant among the martyrs....”

Being a woman in a woman’s body, /
Wearing the clothes of a man, /
Thou didst live among men accomplishing all their labors, /
Restraining the passions and causing the lusts of the flesh to wither away /
Through thy fasting and constant prayer, ///
And thy holy and ceaseless contemplation of God, O mother Theodora.

The sun which sets beneath the rim of the earth /
Never saw thee committing a sin, /
And the Lord, who knoweth the hearts of all and seeth all hidden things /
Knew thee to be steadfast and illumined the eyes of thy heart /
With the light of repentance. /
Therefore, thou didst strive to please Him through the rigors of abstinence, ///
And the perfection of the virtues, O Theodora.

Aware of the traps set for thee by the enemy, /
Thou didst love the child whose father thou wast accused to be, /
And didst nurture him with paternal kindness, O glorious mother, /
Enduring the undeserved censure of men with true piety. ///
Therefore, we celebrate thine honorable feast, O Theodora.

And 3 stichera to Hieromartyr Autonomus, in the same Tone: (and melody)

Shining with the light of the virtues /
And adorned with the beauty of godliness /

Thou wast a most pious hierarch, /
And like a radiant sun, thou didst travel across the world /
Everywhere planting the seeds of faith through thy preaching, /
And cutting down false teachings with the scythe of thy tongue, ///
O divine preacher and hierarch Autonomus.

Thou didst courageously endure great suffering, /
Willingly enduring painful wounds and sores, /
And being buried under a mountain of rocks, O Autonomus, /
Thou didst make them into a stairway leading to heaven /
Which thou didst ascend to God, wearing thy crown, /
Where thou didst join the ranks of the angels, ///
Ever praying for the world.

Thy vestments were radiant with the grace of the Holy Spirit /
And with the blood of thy martyrdom, /
Thus thou didst enter in the Holy of Holies on-High where stood Jesus, the King, /
And thou didst received from God thy crown of victory ///
In the presence of those who shed their blood for Him

Glory..., now and ever..., of the Feast in Tone 4: In the usual melody

As foretold by the angel /
Today hast thou come forth, O Virgin, /
The all-holy offspring of righteous Joachim and Anne. /
Thou art a heaven and the throne of God, /
And a vessel of purity, /
Proclaiming joy to all the world, /
O protectress of our life. /
Thou dost destroy the curse and givest blessing in its place, /
Therefore on this feast of thy birth, O Maiden called by God, ///
Intercede that our souls be given peace and great mercy.

Or the Dogmatic Theotokion, if a Resurrection service.

At the Apostikha, these stichera of the Feast, in Tone 2: To the melody, "O House of Ephratha..."

Thou didst weep tears from the depths of thy soul /
Desiring children and lamenting thy childlessness, ///
Then thou gavest birth to a babe — the boast of the whole human race.

Verse: Hearken, O daughter, and see, and incline thine ear.

Let us honor with voices of praise /
The nativity of the Most Holy Virgin ///
Through whom the entire world is renewed

Verse: The rich among the people shall pray before thy face.

Rejoice, O wise, eloquent, and holy prophets /
For the holy Virgin is born ///
Through whom shall come the Salvation of the world.

Glory..., now and ever..., in Tone 4: the composition of Germanus

Today let Anne, barren and childless, /
Clap her hands with joy. /
Let all things on earth put on their bright array; /
Let kings dance and let priests sing glad hymns of blessing; /
Let the whole world keep the feast. /
For lo, the Queen, the spotless bride of the Father /
Hath blossomed from the root of Jesse. /
No more shall women bear children in sorrow: /
For joy has put forth its flower, and the Life of mankind hath come to dwell in the world. /
No more are the gifts of Joachim turned away: /
For the lament of Ann is changed to joy. /
'Let Israel, the chosen, rejoice with me', she says: /
'For behold, the Lord hath given me the living chamber of His divine glory, ///
Unto the joy and gladness of us all and the salvation of our souls.'

The Troparion of the Venerable Theodora, in Tone 8:

The image of God was truly preserved in thee, O mother, /
For thou didst take up thy cross and follow Christ /
By so doing thou didst teach us to disregard the flesh, for it passes away /
But to care instead for the soul, since it is immortal ///
Therefore thy spirit, O holy Theodora, rejoices with the angels.

Glory..., now and ever..., the Troparion of the Feast, in Tone 4:

Thy nativity, O Virgin Theotokos, /
Hath proclaimed joy to the whole universe! /
The Sun of Righteousness, Christ our God, /

Hath shone from thee, O Theotokos; /
By annulling the curse /
He bestowed the blessing: ///
By destroying death He hath granted us eternal life.

Matins

and the Canons of both Saints with 4 Troparia each

After the Third Ode:

The Kontakion of the Venerable Theodora, in Tone 2: To the melody, "Seeking the highest...."

Praying for the forgiveness of thy sin /
Thou didst spend thy bodily strength in fasting and abstinence /
And thy nights in continual vigils before God. ///
Thus thou didst receive forgiveness and become an example of repentance for us all.

And the Kontakion of the Martyr, in same Tone: (and melody)

O holy hieromartyr Autonomus, /
Thou didst faithfully serve the holy Mysteries /
And didst thyself become a holy sacrifice /
By partaking fully of the Cup of Christ. /
Cease not to intercede for us, ///
O glorious beacon of light for all the world./

After the Sixth Ode:

The Kontakion of the Feast, in Tone 4:

By thy nativity, O most pure Virgin, /
Joachim and Anna are freed from barrenness; /
Adam and Eve, from the corruption of death. /
And we, thy people, are freed from the bondage of sin, celebrate and sing to thee: ///
The barren woman gives birth to the Theotokos, the nourisher of our Life.
